

Autumn is in the air, and we hope you fall in love with a waiting child! We believe that every child deserves a loving and supportive home. Unfortunately, older children or children with medical needs are often overlooked in the adoption process, leaving them needing a family to call their own.

Please share this email with anyone who may be interested in adoption. Together, we can help find these treasured children the loving homes they deserve. To view additional waiting children, click here.

Thank you for your support.

Meet Etta!

Etta is a one-year-old baby who was born prematurely but has made significant progress in sucking and swallowing after receiving mouth massages from her speech therapist. She currently consumes 120 cc. of formula every 8 hours and can eat non-staple foods like congee and fruit puree. Etta expresses her needs through crying and prefers being held or given a pacifier when sad. She enjoys music and finds white noise soothing. Etta needs a caring family to help her find the proper medical care for hydrocephalus and epilepsy.

Orphan Care

CCAI's approach to improving the lives of orphans involves partnering with already-established orphanages and implementing child-centered care philosophy, leadership development, caretaker training, and facility upgrades through LOCCs. Their efforts have significantly improved childcare standards in Chinese orphanages over the past 20 years. Learn how you can support children like Yi Ling, living in China!

CCAI's Lily Orphan Care Center (LOCC) nannies knew that Yi Ling needed extra care and attention to keep her alive and, hopefully, thrive. They recorded her body temperature, milk intake, and daily bowel movements. When it was bedtime, nannies would stay by her bedside and comfort her until she fell asleep. In addition, they took her to a medical professional and learned she had obstructed tear ducts. The nannies lovingly massaged the corners of her eyes daily to keep fluid from building up.
